

A Rover A Day Keeps The Blues Away

Studies have shown that the mere presence of a pet has therapeutic values ranging from lowering heart rates and blood pressure to relieving stress. And people with pets report feeling less loneliness and depression too.

Well we've got just what the doctor ordered. Lots of tail-wagging "prescriptions" available in a variety of sizes and colors that will make you feel as good as new. But be forewarned, you must take all the unconditional love and attention they provide for their entire lifetime in order for this "prescription" to be effective.
